SULLIVANS MAKE KILLING ON G. L. M., A 100 TO 1 SHOT

Bowery Sports Back Winner of Third at Bennings Down to 30 to 1—Society Bud at 60 to 1 Another Long One.

BY FRANK W. THORP.
(Special to The Evening World.)
BENNINGS RACE TRACK, Nov. 27.—The Bowery element, under the leadership of "Big Tim" Sullivan, made a clean-up on G. L. M. this afternoon which they put under the wire a winner at odds of 100 to 1. The crowd from the lower east side of New York must have won $100,000 on this killing.

The horse opened at 50 to 1, but by skillful maneuvering a full turn was given to the betting and G. L. M. went up to 100 to 1. The Bowery bettors then got busy and hurled small chunks of money at every bookmaker around the grounds. The horse rapidly fell to 30 to 1, at which price he closed. Had the horse been longer at the post he would likely have dropped to 10 to 1, as the bookies were getting up a heavy sweat rubbing off their slates. Jockey Brady handled the "good thing" nicely, and with Onatas at his heels rushed under the wire, with some distance to spare. Many of the "wise" bettors went to Red Knight, and that gave the Bowery element a chance to keep up the price on G. L. M.

Twelve to one shot in fifth. Workman, a warm favorite in the fifth race, failed to get in the wire way, showed the wire and the air, followed by Loretta and Rother Royal. In the race from the front and in a drive won by a neck from Rother Royal, who beat Delphie a head for the place.

SHOT TO DEATH IN HIS OFFICE; CASE A MYSTERY

Woman Employee of Newark Man Detained by Police as a Witness.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 27.—R. J. Barrington, who for about a month has been in the Century Building, on Market street, was found shot to death in his office this afternoon. The body was discovered by Miss Carrie Utter, who was in his employ. She had been out for several hours and made the discovery on her return. A revolver lay beside the body. The bullet from it had gone through the head from left to right. The case was at first thought to be a suicide, but examination of the revolver showed that the exploded shell was at the bottom of the cylinder and not under the hammer. In consequence the police concluded the case looked suspicious enough for an investigation and Miss Utter was detained as a witness. Barrington travelled from city to city with the woman, and it is believed that he was in Newark before being shot. Miss Utter said he had been doing money and was worried.

WAGON-LOAD OF PAPERS AND OTHER DOCUMENTS SEIZED BY JEROME'S ORDER IN HOUSE OF POOL-ROOM KEEPER AND TAKEN TO PROSECUTOR'S OFFICE.
SIMILAR TACTICS BROKE UP ADAMS'S POLICY GAME.

List of Names Obtained To-Day Includes Police Inspectors, Captains and Sergeants, City Officials and Politicians—Jerome Says They Are Most Important.

When "The" Allen's home at No. 17 West Eighth street was raided to-day the invaders found evidence which District-Attorney Jerome declares will certainly lead to the discovery of the identity of the Man Higher Up. In Allen's desk the raiders found a great mass of private papers, personal letters and gambling accounts. These were taken intact to Mr. Jerome.

YAWNED, FELL FIVE STORIES, BROKE NETTING.
Cost Him an Hour's Work and a Pair of Suspenders, B'gosh!

Sam Furterter, of No. 167 Suffolk street, is mighty unlucky. Not on account of his name alone, but because of some other things. For example, he lost half an hour from his work to-day, and broke a blamed good pair of suspenders besides.

Sam Furterter (see above) was washing windows on the fifth floor of the office building at No. 65 Broadway this afternoon. The window opened on an air shaft. So did Sam. He yawned and the yaw caused him to lose his grip.

While falling he decided to alight on the wire netting over the skylight above the novelty store of Max West, on the ground floor, which, with rare presence of mind, he did. The netting bounced Sam about ten feet in the air and then he settled back gradually, as it were.

After he had spent some time in carefully examining the documents Mr. Jerome announced that he had discovered important information. Incriminating memoranda bearing the names of police inspectors and captains, members of the patrol force, prominent politicians, city officials and well-known men.

Important, Says Jerome.
"I attach the utmost importance to the papers that were seized to-day," said Mr. Jerome. "I am sure they will be fruitful of valuable disclosures and developments."

The District-Attorney took a lot of interest in this raid. It is similar to the raid Capt. Goddard's forces made upon the office of Al Adams in West Thirty-fourth street when sufficient evidence was collected to put the policy shops of the city out of business.

Assisted by District-Attorney Murphy, who is conducting the gambling investigation, to-day examined the most important witness he has been able to get hold of. This man acted for months as the cashier of a pool-room. Through the evidence of others he was pinned down to narrow limits and, under the provision of the Dawkins law, had to testify to the truth or go to jail inasmuch as by testifying he earned immunity for himself, he reluctantly made a lot of valuable admissions.

Tracing Graft Payments.
It is reported that he paid-off by $50 every week out of the receipts for police protection. Whether he knows who eventually got the money or not is a question. The District-Attorney knows who got the money from him and this man has been subpoenaed.

Robert E. Lee Mordecai was subjected to a long examination by Mr. Murphy to-day. Mr. Mordecai went into bankruptcy last week. In his list of creditors he gave the names of half a score of gamblers who told him that he owed them for nearly $30,000. He swore in the bankruptcy proceedings that he had about $200,000 in Tanglewood gambling houses.

Violated Their Promises.
Many of the gamblers in Mr. Mordecai's list promised Mr. Jerome over a year ago that they would close their houses and never turn a wheel or deal a card in New York County again while he was in office. Mr. Mordecai expected to show that these men did not live up to their promises.

A list of the pool-rooms that ran without interruption up to a few days after election was made up by Mr. Jerome. Many of them would have closed regardless of the District-Attorney's crusade against gambling. The District-Attorney has a good line on scores of employees who have been subpoenaed.

Gambling-house and pool-room-keepers who are willing to swear that they did not pay police protection will now in session. The report of this Grand Jury, which will be handed to Judge O'Sullivan to-morrow, is expected to contain a list of sensations in regard to the gambling question and the police.

ROOSEVELT RESUMES WORK WITH CABINET.
President Bronzed by His Trip to Panama and in Fine Shape for Duties.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—President Roosevelt, bronzed and invigorated from his long sea-trip to Panama and Porto Rico, was in his office to-day. Secretary Loom took to him a large amount of correspondence which had accumulated since the President's departure for his tour of duty.

Secretary McMeekin came to the Cabinet meeting to-day with a big report which it was generally supposed contained his report on the investigation growing out of the alleged disaffection against the Japanese in the matter of school facilities in San Francisco.

The Secretary went to San Francisco at the direction of the President more than a month ago, when the agitation affecting the Japanese was at its height, and since his return he has been working on his report. All the members were present at the session for the first time since the beginning of the political campaign.

Nearly the entire time of the session of the Cabinet, which lasted from 11:15 to 1:30, was devoted to listening to the President's story of his trip to the Isthmus of Panama and the conditions existing there, which he pictured in glowing terms.

ways and manage them as a municipal undertaking, was defeated, the Assembly deciding not to proceed with the scheme for the present.
